John 10:11-18 (Easter 4)

Jesus said: "I am the good shepherd. A good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep. A hired man, who is not a shepherd and whose sheep are not his own, sees a wolf coming and leaves the sheep and runs away, and the wolf catches and scatters them. This is because he works for pay and has no concern for the sheep. I am the good shepherd, and I know mine and mine know me, just as the Father knows me and I know the Father; and I will lay down my life for the sheep. I have other sheep that do not belong to this fold. These also I must lead, and they will hear my voice, and there will be one flock, one shepherd. This is why the Father loves me, because I lay down my life in order to take it up again. No one takes it from me, but I lay it down on my own. I have power to lay it down, and power to take it up again. This command I have received from my Father."

Focus Questions for 4/21/24

Fr. Antony's Letter

Dear Friends,

Jim to mom: "I decided that I want to be a political science major and clean up the mess in the world."

Mom to Jim: "That is very nice. First, you can go upstairs and start with your room."

The message of the Risen Jesus is to clean each one's world in order to clean the whole world. Unless we become good, the world will not become good. The world will be the way we are.

The readings of the third week of Easter proclaim the power of the Resurrection to change the world by changing ourselves first. In the first reading Peter who was ready to save Jesus by cutting the ear of a soldier at the time of arrest in the garden of Gethsemane, (John 18:10) now invites the killers of Jesus to a new life of forgiveness and loving community. He personally knows how he was forgiven and accepted back by Jesus to be his disciple. Thus Peter, the forgiven-one, promises the forgiveness to those who acted against Jesus. When the personal world of Peter filled with new life from forgiveness, he offers the world the gift of new life inviting them to forgiveness. Peter invites the world to become what he had become.

In the Gospel reading we see the same thing. The other disciples are not reprimanded by Jesus for having abandoned him (Mark 14:45-50) to die alone on the cross. Jesus forgives them and commissions them to preach forgiveness and the promise of new life. Risen Jesus invites us to experience the new life of forgiveness and love in order that the new world of forgiveness and new life become a reality starting from us.

The second reading presents that "Jesus Christ the righteous one is the expiation for our sins, and not for our sins only but for those of the whole world." This is to say that Jesus wants each of us to have a fresh start as persons whose sins, however grievous they may be, are forgiven. We are all forgiven people. We don't need to waste our time and energy on personal guilt, nor do we need to hold anything against anybody. As forgiven people we are invited to start focusing on and begin living how good and loving we can be to each other. The Risen Jesus encourages us now as he encouraged his disciples then to live as witnesses of what has happened to us believers in His Death and Resurrection.

As long as we focus on weakness and pains that we cause to each other, neither our life nor our world will have any time or opportunity to live or experience the best that we can be to each other. Jesus forgave all our sins. This means that we should put an end to viewing ourselves and others as bad sinners. The greetings of Risen Jesus "Peace be with you" encourages every baptized person like us to start living from God's trust in us to build a peaceful world. In baptism we died and rose in Jesus Christ. We are filled with the grace of New Life in Jesus. Let us live our best and promote wherever and in whomever we see the best. Let us become in reality the promise/wish of the Risen Jesus, "Peace be with you."

With love and prayers,
Fr. Antony

His Presence Is Real - Reflections on the Eucharist by Deacon Matt

The Mass: Liturgy of the Eucharist - Part XIII

Now that we have completed our look at the main Eucharistic Prayers, let's look at what immediately follows these prayers. As we mentioned during the details of each prayer, and during our overview of the entire Liturgy of the Eucharist many weeks ago, the Eucharistic Prayers always end with the Final Doxology. Is this just simply a nice way to conclude the prayers, or is there some greater meaning in the context of the Eucharist?

The word doxology literally means "an accounting of glory." The most common one we all know is the "Glory Be." The "Gloria" is also a doxology. This eucharistic doxology begins with the deacon elevating the chalice, filled with the Precious Blood of Jesus, and the priest elevating a consecrated host, the Body of Christ. As you'll recall, the Eucharistic Prayer is always directed to God the Father.

The priest (and any concelebrating priests and/or bishops, but never the deacon or the assembly) begins "Through him, with him and in him

..." The "him" is Jesus, who is the Sacrifice of the Mass as well as the One being shown to us, and our risen Savior. We profess "glory and honor" to the Father, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, and this prayer becomes a very powerful Trinitarian prayer. This sacrifice that has once again taken place as it did on Calvary now incorporates us as benefactors as well, all to the glory of God.

And how do we respond? With a Great Amen. We truly believe! We believe it with every ounce of our faith, and we believe it joyfully. Christ gives himself totally to us. Not only do we receive him in our hearts, but, in the next moments of the Mass, will intimately receive him in the Real Presence as we partake of the Eucharist.

"If we paused for a moment to consider attentively what takes place in this Sacrament, I am sure that the thought of Christ's love for us would transform the coldness of our hearts into a fire of love and gratitude." – St. Angela of Foligno
